Alliant Energy names JP Brummond vice president of business planning

MADISON, Wis. – January 8, 2019 – John Larsen, president and chief operating officer of Alliant Energy Corp., announced that JP Brummond has been named vice president of business planning.

In his role, JP will be responsible for developing an energy resource and infrastructure plan that takes advantage of newer technologies to meet customer needs for cleaner, affordable energy.

“Evolving customer expectations and emerging technologies are driving changes in how our local power grids can work,” said Larsen. “JP will play a critical role in helping us develop a technologically advanced power grid that can deliver the affordable, sustainable energy customers are demanding.”

JP has been with Alliant Energy since 2002, holding leadership positions in corporate strategy, energy markets, generation and field operations.

He earned a bachelor’s degree in Chemical Engineering from the University of Wisconsin – Madison and an MBA from the University of Chicago. He currently serves as an Advisory Board Member of the UW – Madison Erdman Center for Operations and Technology Management.
